Learning Management

Successful organizations understand that employee learning & development is critical to their strategic goals. EHS is no exception. World-class EHS performance requires that employees - at every level - possess the necessary knowledge and skills to effectively identify, assess and manage risk in real-time. At Cority, we're providing advanced solutions to help organizations empower their workforce with the skills they need to drive better EHS results through the power of digital transformation.

Learning Management

An employee-centric approach to learning

Drive greater worker engagement in EHS by putting the employee at the center of their learning and development journey. Cority's Learning Management solution leverages advanced features to enable organizations to design EHS training to support their employee's specific needs and job-related risks. Learning Management helps employers analyze their workforce's knowledge and on-the-job behavior in order to create a relevant learning experience that is flexible, highly engaging and effective, while powering employees by giving them more control over how, when and where they learn.

Key Features

Training Groups

Efficiently group workers together based on defined criteria and simplify the training assignment process.

Training Courses

Easily create training course libraries leveraging internal or third-party content in just a few clicks.

Training Series

Group courses together in a series to achieve key training objectives and support additive learning.

Mobile Accessibility

Empower employees to control how, when and where learning is achieved, through anywhere, anytime access from a mobile device.

Business Intelligence

Accurately track training performance in real-time and uncover key insights to inform business decisions.

Key Benefits

Enhance engagement & adoption

Easily create relevant EHS learning experiences that meet business needs, maximize retention and engagement, reduce costs, and provide employees more control over how training is consumed.

Strengthen compliance

Simplify training assignments and monitor EHS training programs efficiently while boosting accountability and resolving issues before they translate into non-compliance risk.

Reduce administration

Eliminate inefficient, costly, and error-prone manual processes through automation, helping you focus your limited resources on your most critical issues.

Streamline operations

Integrate training into existing EHS workflows, reducing time lag to address skills gaps, and supporting action management from other EHS processes.

Gain actionable insights to drive better decisions

Enhance visibility into training program data, helping leadership prioritize training resources, identify barriers, and strengthen culture through stronger employee engagement.
