A new year ushers in new trends in the fashion industry, and this year, new iterations of 2018's most popular jewellery trends will be on every fashion forward person's it list.

According to Damiani Jewellers, a luxury jewellery boutique in Ontario, people can expect to see a "maximalist" aesthetic in the everyday wear and street style photos of their favorite fashion icons and influencers.

While basic everyday hoops took center stage for much of 2018, this year will be all about chunky hoops and embellished statement hoop earrings. Stackable necklaces and bracelets were another major focal point for the Spring 2019 runways, and already this trend has started to trickle down to red carpet events and retail lookbooks. Finally, mixing and matching metals like white, rose, and yellow gold lend a bohemian glam feel to any outfit with ease.

From timeless, traditional pieces to one-of-a-kind designs, Damiani Jewellers always has a wide selection of 18kt gold jewellery on hand. Almost all of Damiani's 18kt gold jewellery comes from Italy, so their inventory is always stocked with the latest in jewellery trends from Europe. For those looking to switch things up when it comes to jewellery and accessories, this is an opportunity to discover unique, interesting pieces that won't be found anywhere else.

In comparison, the latest in bridal jewellery trends shines a spotlight on unique diamond shapes and silhouettes -- giving brides-to-be an opportunity to choose a design that truly reflects their personality.
