Dayton, Ohio. March 1, 2014 - When the valves in the deeper leg veins begin to work ineffectively in keeping blood moving upward toward the heart they become blocked or the blood may leak around the valve of the veins the veins causing them to stay filled with blood. This describes the condition known as chronic venous insufficiency or CVI.

Some of the root causes of the valve damage that leads to CVI are aging, extended sitting or standing, reduced mobility due to obesity or pregnancy, being tall and/or a family history of this condition. Usually affecting people over 40, it is even more common in people over the age of 50, especially women. CVI most commonly occurs as the result of a blood clot in the deep veins of the legs, a disease known as deep vein thrombosis (DVT). Approximately 30 percent of people with DVT will develop post-thrombotic syndrome within 10 years after diagnosis.

Dr. Raymon Wolf is a cosmetic surgeon practicing in the greater Dayton Ohio area, specializing in laser vein therapy and vein treatment. He treats spider veins and varicose veins on a weekly basis and offers a unique approach to those suffering from CVI and DVT.

He stated in a video broadcast, "Dr. Wolfs Rejuvenation Center offer complete phlebology approaches to manage deep vein thrombosis and also venous disease of the superficial venous system. The differences are that we perform the ultrasound here in our office and it's different than a hospital ultrasound where the focus is deep vein thrombosis and not the management of the superficial venous system."

Laser vein therapy is not as intensive or expensive as some people assume. A spokesman from the practice stated, "Most varicose veins and spider veins will not require surgery and can be treated at an affordable fee. Some conditions that are medical related will usually covered by insurance."
